Al Gore gave a really important speech on 18th September at NYU, in it he goes beyond the message of crisis in "An Inconvenient Truth" and makes suggestions for what should be done about it. In particular, he calls for a freeze on Carbon Emission levels (we need to bring them down, so a freeze is a good start). We need bold suggestions, and the longer we leave taking action the tougher those proposals will need to be. View the webcast video here or directly here

. or read the transcript below, and of course don't miss "An Inconvenient Truth" when it screens near you.
